Dear Hal,

I think I forgot to tell you that I've completed a book on the Hosty rewriting of his and our history, Hosty's Pudding, with a subtitle. It has been retyped and Bill Mills has it on a diskette. He has printed it out. So, either way, from the disk or by xerox, he and/or Charles can provide a copy. Perhaps Aguilar would like one. OK but I do not want word of it to get around because I can't now make the copies, I am too feeble to engage in any controversy about it, and I do not want Bill or Charles imposed upon or to impose upon themselves. So, I suggest that if you or Gary want a copy that you insist on paying Charles his usual charge for xeroxing, his business. That way Bill will not have to take time, and he is quite busy now, and Charles will not have the cost to bear.

Best,

Hal
